

01 May 2023 – WRSA is excited to be a part of the new Rewilding Southern Africa magazine, celebrating its inaugural edition this month.

“Rewilding Southern Africa provides an integrated communications platform for a greater understanding and appreciation of rewilding, and how it can revitalise entire ecosystems. It is an upmarket publication aimed at conservationists, policymakers and concerned readers for whom conservation and the improvement of natural habitats shape how they live, what they consume, and where they choose to take their rest.”

In response to the wishes of our members, as well as the need for industry to communicate directly with an audience of interested readers, WRSA will have a dedicated section in every edition of the magazine, covering the latest research, industry developments, and notable events relevant to the Agro Sustainable Biodiversity Wildlife Economy.

Members can find WRSA’s content from page 62 to page 73:

- Rewilding in Action (by WRSA CEO Richard York), and
- Cape Mountain Zebra Achievement (by Joseph Mülders)
